Accused Woman Denies She Committed Murder to Gain Notoriety.

Special Cable Despatch to THE SEN. Agen, Lot-et-Garonne, Aug. 5.—"A mort!"
A mort!" ("To death! To death!") shouted a crowd around the court room here to-day when Mine. Crespy, the poetess, accused of the murder of a priest, Abbe Chassaing, on January 13 last, was taken to court from the January is last, was taken to court from the prison. Mme. Crespy was pale but less depressed than yesterday. She told a dramatic story on the stand explaining how the priest died. She denied that she had killed him to gain notoriety as the heroine of a "crime passionel" and thus advertise her books, which she has been unable to sell.

The Judge opened the examination by saying that there are only two possible theories to account for the death of the Abbe Chassaing—suicide, for which there was no evidence, and murder, which alone could have been committed by the woman. He then allowed Mme. Crespy to tell without interruption her story of her meeting with Abbe Chassaing. The woman's voice was scarcely audible when she began the tale, but gradually grew more animated.

tale, but gradually grew more animated, even violent.

The poetess, who was once crowned Queen of the Provencal Literary Revival, told how she met the priest in the obscurity of the confessional in the little church of Agen. She was recently divorced and confessed to Abbe Chassaing that she had a lover, a poet named de Reme, who she said "understood Abbe Chassaing was severe in his condemnation of the woman's course of life. He told her that the Catholic Church does not recognize divorce and insisted on her breaking off her relations with the poet.

Mme. Crespy said she consented and promised to go frequently to confession to the priest. Then she saw that he was following her in the street, hiding in doorways to watch her, and one day he invited her to go to his house. The close friendship which followed was troubled, the poetess went on, by memories of De Reme, who left went on, by memories of De Reme, who left Agen at the behest of his family. She said this departure was characterized by Abbe Chassaing as the "intercession of heaven."

When the abbe was appointed to the parish of Montastruc he asked her to accord him a last interview.

"I saw no reason why L should refuse," said Mme. Crespy, "though I was haunted that evening by the memory of De Reme. The abbe took me in his arms, kissed me and said: 'My love, my love!' Then he abruptly asked me to destroy a book of my poems which I dedicated to De Reme. I refused, and a painful scene followed. The abbe finally became calm again and asked abbe finally became calm again and asked me to give him a copy of my poems de-scribing our common thoughts. As I left the room to comply with his request I heard a shot and rushed back. The abbe was on the floor with a bullet hole in his left temple.

Abbe Was Not Left Handed.

The Judge interposed a query as to how she could explain why a man who was not left handed shot himself in the left temple. He pointed out that the revolver was old and would have left powder marks on the abbe's hand if it had been discharged by him. Expert testimony showed that the shot was fired from a distance, he added: Mme. Crespy persisted in her version of the affair, saying that the abbe regarded his new appointment as a disgrace and that he did not want to leave her.

HAVANA PORT CO. TO APPEAL.

Will Fight President Menocal's Decialon to Cancel Contracts.

Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN. HAVANA, Aug. 5 —On the advice of the attorneys of the Port Company an appeal to the Supreme Court will be taken against President Menocal's decree denying that the company has any legal existence, stopping the payment of tonnage bills to it and ordering the Department of Justice to take steps to declare the articles of in-Corporation null and void.

The attorneys hold that President Meno cal's decree is unconstitutional and that President is usurping the functions he judiciary. The Supreme Court usually convenes in December, but as the law requires a decision on appeals involving the question of constitutionality within thirty days after the appeal is filed the court will assemble in October. Meanwhile harbor improvement work is paralyzed and payments are withheld from the company. The Port Company intends to bring suit and tonnage bills and that the concession granted to the company by the Cuban Congress under the Gomez Administration be held as an escrow pending a decision. This suit may last a year or two.

A commission of members of the various Government departments will be appointed to take over the port works.

J. R. V. GILLIAT DIES SUDDENLY. General Blood Poisoning Is Verdict

at Inquest.

Special Cable Despatch to The Sun.

London, Aug. 5.—John R. V. Gilliat of New York, who came to England from the Continent on July 23, died suddenly on Saturday. Symptoms of arsenic poisoning were discovered and a Coroner's inquest was held to-day.

Mr. Gilliat's brother-in-law, Morton Cliss attended the inquest. Dr. Nitch.

Mr. Gilliat's brother-in-law, Morton Cois, attended the inquest. Dr. Nitch, who treated Gilliat for a long standing illness, said he administered an injection containing two grains of arsenic. No simptoms of poisoning developed for three days. Dr. Trevor, a well known pathologist, made a postmortem examination and testified that death was due to heart failure while the man was suffering from general blood poisoning. The Coroner said the case was professionally referred to as "delayed poisoning" and no physician could foresee such an event or be held responsible for it. A verdict of "death by misadventure" was returned.

Accused Man Owns Big Private Hospital and Three Chateaux in France.

Special Cable Despatch to Tan Sex

PARIS, Aug. 5 .- All Paris is amazed at arrest to-day of Armand Duperdussin, the noted inventor and manufacturer of aeroplanes, on the complaint of a banking firm which alleges that he owes several millions of france on loans made to him to perfect his inventions.

Besides aviation schemes for which M. Duperdusin supplied the capital but ignored the practical side he owns a private hospital where the greatest surgeons perform operations. It is modern in every respect. He has been interested also in periodicals, theatrical enterprises and naval construction.

Made $200,000 a Year.

The banking firm which brought the charge which resulted in the financier's arrest say he obtained $6,00,000 by forgeries and also realized big loans on Russian and French orders for aeroplanes which, the bankers allege, were fraudulent, and spent the meney on his own personal needs. They say he made $200,000 a year out of the aeroplane business and spent five times that amount.

M. Duperdussin admits that he raised loans to pay off other loans as they fell due and finally reached the point where he could get no more..

of aviation are the only persons to whom M. Duperdussin's arrest did not come as a surprise. They are inclined to blame the surprise. They are inclined to blame the French Government for not having given proper support to M. Duperdussin in his plans for supplying aeroplanes to the army.

Says Banks Got High Interest. The aviator complains that the banks from which he borrowed money forced his liabilities. He alleges that the War Office owes him $160,000 since last October and that he has not been able to collect the meney. He says he has orders for aeroplanes to the amount of $200,000 on hand and cannot execute them unless he gets a new supply of capital.

M. Duperdussin owns three chateaux and three automobiles and has long been noted for the magnificent manner in which he has been accustomed to live. He recently acquired the Champagne aerodrome at Rheims for $100,000 and bought additional land. He belongs to a wealthy family of Liege.

M. Duperdussin, who is about 45 years old, sent a French aviation team to the United States to defend the Coupe Internationale d'Aviation and was rewarded by the French Government with the order of the Legion of Honor. He subscribed $29,000 to defray the expenses of the aviators in the preliminary races to choose competitors for the cup this year.

MILITANTS BURN 2 MANSIONS. Sir George Newnes's North Devonshire Home Destroyed.

Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN. LONDON, Aug. 5.—The picturesque residence at Lynton, in North Devonshire, of dence at Lynton, in North Devonshire, of the late Sir George Newnes, the magazine publisher, one of the most beautiful houses in that section of England, was destroyed by an incendiary fire started early to-day by militant suffragettes, belonging to what is known as the "arson squad." Bombs were placed in the house and four of them exploded while firemen were fighting the flames, bringing the walls of the house down on the men.
Six firemen were badly injured. The damage to the property is estimated at $60,000. Nobody was in the house when the fire started.

Another country place near Woldenham, Surrey, in course of erection was also set on fire this morning. Bombs were found in the ruins. Copies of the Sufragette, the militant publication, were scattered around. The damage is esti-mated at $20,000.

GREY DISCUSSES PANAMA FAIR. Denies That Refusal. Was Due to Canal Toll Controversy.

London, Aug. 5.—There was some criticism of the declination of the British Government to participate in the Panama-Pacific Exposition at San Francisco in 1915 in a lengthy debate which aross in the House of Commons this afternoon It was argued that private enterprise might be induced to take the place of official Government representation.

Sir Edward Grey, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, had prepared a lengthy statement showing the attitude of the Government. He denied that the refusal was due in any way to the controversy over canal tolls, but said that the estimated expenditure of $1,125,000 would greatly exceed any commercial advantages which would be likely to result.
Inquiries in the commercial centres of chloral administered at the United Kingdom, he said, had not shown that there was any active desire to participate. The conditions laid down prescribed that exhibits be distributed among a series of international pavillons. thereby rendering it impossible to obtain an effective national display. The ques-tion was dealt with on those grounds without reference to the question of Panama Canal tolls.
